BILL GAY'S TOUGH SITUATION.

Touching Appeal-for an Old Timer Who Has Been Weonged. OMAHA, May 15.—To the Editor of The Bee: Several months ago I gave an entertainment at Helena, Mont., where I visited Bill Gay in the county, jail, charged with murder, and then awailing trial. From all I could learn from the sheriff and the elitors of the Helena papers, I was fully satiters of the Helena payers is the that Bill Gay was being persecuted and that he was not guilty of murder. I helped him all that I could, and have tried raise some funds. Today I much concerning it, no doubt. I will give you an outline of the trouble, and what led have sent him a little imoney out of my own pocket and I ask you to publish the following letter, which I recently received from him, and I want to say here that a kinder hearted, more generous man never lived, and there are many of the old-timers here in Omaha who knew Gay in the carly days, when he was one of the men who took desperate chances to open up the great riches of the Black Hills. I trust the papers in the Hills will take this up and that these who can will send something, "If it is ever so little." It may help to save his life and eventually restore him to his family. Money should be sent to to his family. Money should be sent to Bill Gay, in care of the sheriff, Helena, Mont. I believe Gay's story to be true, and it is vouched for by other clippings in my possession. Hoping you will do this for Auld Lang Syne, I am yours, in clouds or J. W. CRAWFORD. "Captain Jack."

HELENA, Mont., April 13 .- My Dear Old Time Friend, Captain Jack: I understand you will be in Omaha some time this month. I will therefore write you concerning my present trouble. Many long years have passed and gone since we first met. You will remember the circumstances. It was at the point of rocks near Buffalo Gap, Black Hills, in February, 1876. You and two others came to my camp late at night. You ors came to my camp late at night. You had been trailing a war party of Sioux who had run off a band of horses from Custer City that morning. Yourself and party remained with me over night. We all traveled together as far as Custer City. You were at that time correspondent for the Omaha Bee. In April you and Dick Brown and party came to Gayville and built a cabin. I often this k of our fight with Indians on the Red Water. We were outnumbered ten to ne; our situation was desperate. Many old Jack, with feelings of gratitude for the many valuable services rendered by yourself and the brave boys under you while you were in charge of the Black Hills scouts, ers and freighters during those early days. when hostile Sloux lurked in every coulee and ravine in the Black Hills and a white man's scalp was not safe a moment should he wander out alone. Scarcely a day passed but what the reports came in that some one had been murdered by Indians or road agents. or stock stampeded and run off, and holdups I do not fear death, but it's the method I were an every day occurrence. Every one knows you saved many a man's life those days. By the way, you will remember the massacre of the Metz (or Mitta) family in Red canon? It was always supposed that Indians committed the deed, but I learned rears afterward that Lame Bradley (the noted chief of the road agents) and his gang murdered them. It was an old grudge, Metz and his wife testified against Bradley years before and caused him to be sent to prison. The story is too long to write you Now as to my trouble. You have heard

The enclosed ellopings will give you some lifea how the community looks at the injustice of my sentence, and the unfair-ness of my trial. I became involved in a land suit at Castle, Meagher county, Mont. in 1802, with one N. C. Benson and others. He was editing a newspaper at the time, and was prominent in politics at Castle. He published all manner of scandalous things about me and trumped up charges of all kinds against me, and had me arrested twice, but not the slightest evidence was ever produced to connect me in any way with what the and his gang charged me with. At last they determined to drive me out of the country. I received a number of anonymous letters signed with the cabalistic 3-777 and skull and crossbones, ordering me to leave the country on penalty of death, unless conplied with at once. I had committed no crime and did not thel like being run or driven out. And often, during my absence from home, my family was subjected to every indignity and insult. Myself and brother-in-I had committed law. Harry Gross, were fired upon from ambush by a mob of so-called officers of Meagher county on two different occasions they tried to mob us at four different times within a month, before any one was hurt. They had no warrant and never did during all the trouble have a warrant for me. Our houses were searched time and again stolen goods (a store had been robbed in Castle) and that, too, without a search war rant, but nothing was ever found, except what belonged to us. At last a mob of twenty started out to murder us. We were ready to leave the country. The us down the Musselshell river. They pursued refuge in the brish. The mob kept up a fuellade all day and in the afternoon an armed posse started through the brush with Hillers will always remember you, rifles ready. They never asked us to surrender or even told us they were efficers. One of them was shot and died a few days afterward. Our women and children were then ar-rested by order of J. J. of Meagher county, and thrown into the calaboose at Castle. My wife had been in poor health for years. My 16-year-old daughter, Ella, had been sick for weeks and not able to leave the house. Her grandmother was 65 years old and very feeble, and even my little 10-year-old daughter. Maud, was obliged to occupy the prison cell along with the others. No pily or mercy was shown tender childhood or decrepit age, and all this simply because the Castle mob could not assassinate myzelf and Grass. The calaboose was filthy in the extreme and full of vermin. A few old dirty quilts and the bate floor was the only ed allowed them; the windows were broken and the walls full of cracks. An old bro-ken stove and a little fuel kept them from perishing with the cold, for in that high altitude the weather is severe, even in May. My daughter Ella died a few months later from the ill treatment she received at the hands of the Castleites. The women were Testimonials are not much good in a horse trade. Large Increase in Membership During the Past Year. It was very evident from the attendance at the auditorium in the Young Men's Christian association building last night that the Young Women's Christian association has become a factor in the city if that fact were not known before. The big hall was filled with the bright young members and their friends, who were gathered to celebrate the third anniversary of the institution of the association in the city. An appropriately festive air was Icaned to the occasion by huge panels and draperies of green and blue, the association colors, which backed the platform upon which were seated the directors | Pilgrim Congregational church for $125. and officers.

The program opened with a hymn, ture reading and prayer, and then followed the annual reports of the secretary and treas-urer. The former, Miss Nannie Clayton. gave a general outline of the work during the past year. The report showed there is at present a membership of 605, an increase of 138 during the year. Of this number 329 are active and the rest are associate members. The class enrollment of the year was During the year the noon att at the central rooms in The Bee building was 28,951 and at the branch at 513 South Twelfth street 7,684. The report also expressed gratitude to the owners of The Bebuilding for the manner in which the sociation had been treated, especially ing permitted to use the beautiful court for entertainments.

The report of Mrs. H. J. Penfold, the treasurer, showed there was a deficit of about $235 for the year. It is expected this will be fully made up during the coming year, as the association was never in a better condition than it is now. The general secretary, Miss Cady, informed the assemblage that the officers were looking for a man or woman to donate grounds and money for an association building, and that efforts were to be devoted in the future to obtain them. A gymnasium, she said, was especially needed, and it was expected that some one would step forward with th cash to establish one before the fall. She made an earnest plea that the association be supported by subscriptions, as it was do-ing an incalculable amount of good for young women of the city, especially those who wer here alone. In this connection cards were distributed by twelve of the members among the audience, who were urged to pledg themselves for a monthly subscription themselves for a monthly subscription.

that the book. "Readings From the Bible," compiled by W. J. Onahan, J. H. Barrows and C. C. Bonney be used in the schools of the city. An effort to cut off the report by adjournment was defeated. Cramblet explained that it was proposed to place one of the books in the hands of each pupil and that an arrangement had been made by which the books could be purchased for 25 cents each. It developed during the discussion that there were approximately which would make the expense of the contemplated action not less than $1,500. After ome further discussion Tukey raised point of order that under the rules no text ook could be adopted until a copy had been in the hands of each member of the board for at least a month. The point was custained and Tukey, Edwards and others protested against the proposed action. They insisted that if any part of the bible was to be read in the schools it should be the book itself and not a makeshift which a publishing concern had produced as a money making scheme and not out of regard for religon. Then the report was placed on file. Ayes, Dennis, Edwards, Irey, Jordan, Lowe, Tukey, President Rhoades—7; nays, Ander-

Mr. Rosewater traced the part that steam and compressed air have taken in the mechanical history of the world from the time their powers were first discovered. He also demonstrated the principles involved in this branch of engineering science. He showed the man-ner in which they were used and explained the apparatus by which they were gener-ated. The methods by which the two powers were illustrated by interesting ex-amples from different cities.
